

GREENBRIER AUTISM COMMUNITY TO HOST A FREE EVENT

Posted on September 17, 2018 by Daniella Hankey

LEWISBURG, WV (WOAY)- The Greenbrier Autism Community (GAC) will host a free Community Resource Fair for Autism, from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m., Sept. 28, at the Roland P. Sharp Alumni Center on the campus of the West Virginia School of Osteopathic Medicine (WVSOM).

The resource fair will be free and is geared toward individuals on the autism spectrum, their families, friends and providers.

The fair will offer information about healthcare, law enforcement, geo trackers, equine therapy and more. The event will also include sensory activities and massage therapy.

GAC Board Member Amy Boone is excited to help educate the community with this event.

“We are looking forward to this wonderful fair full of area resources and networking opportunities. We will also offer some presentations and activities for the kids, too,” Boone said.

Come to this family friendly event learn about the resources in the area, network with others, attend presentations and have some fun!

For more information, please visit the Greenbrier Autism Community's Facebook page.

This event is sponsored by GAC and WVSOM.