CHARLESTON, WV (WOAY)- Reconnecting McDowell, the public-private partnership strengthening public education and communities in McDowell County, will hold a town hall meeting at Mount View High School on Monday evening and will unveil a major new program for every student in every school.

This is the third town hall meeting for the public that Reconnecting McDowell has held in its nearly seven years.

At the town hall meeting, leaders of Reconnecting McDowell will discuss upcoming plans for the schools and communities, and members of the public will share their ideas beginning at 6:30 p.m.

The American Federation of Teachers, the convener of Reconnecting McDowell, will describe the program it is unveiling and will display the items that will be available for every student in every school.
